BIG RACING PROGRAM

Yesterday Was Biggest First Day in History of the Fair—Start Live Stock Judging Today.

With practically all of Janesville's business closed for the afternoon, directors of the Janesville fair were assured of the biggest day in the week of the biggest fair ever put on in this county. The crowds began to arrive long before eight o'clock, and by noon there were thousands of people on the grounds and on the streets on their way to the fair. Today is the big day, and Janesville is turning out. Officials estimated this noon that the attendance would top the ten thousand mark before the day was over.

There is scarcely a store or a factory in the city which did not comply with the request of the fair directors to close for the afternoon, and there is scarcely an employee who is not taking advantage of the half-holiday to see the fair. The first program of races of the entire week was scheduled for the afternoon, with the big race of the card, the 3:06 pace, as the feature of the speed contests. Besides this race there is the 2:35 pace, a purse of $1,000, and the 2:40 pace, a purse of $500. The 2:40 pace, also for five hundred dollars, with a purse of $500, and the three year old trot for five hundred dollars with eleven entries, make up the day's card.

Record First Day.
Yesterday, the first day of the fair, and as always the slackest of the week, surprised everyone by bringing out a larger attendance than has ever been recorded for a first day. About three hundred and fifty dollars were taken in paid admissions, and as all children under fourteen were admitted free, the total attendance ran up to well over the two thousand mark. It was a big day for the children; special stunts had been planned and in the afternoon a little special program was run off for their benefit.

The results in the various events are given below:
Boys' pony race: 1st, Robert Morrison; 2d, James Maxfield; 3d, James L. Dugan.
Girls' pony race: 1st, Alice Arnold; 2d, Gladys Martin.
Men's running race, Rock county horses only: 1st, Stanley Wallace; 2d, Warren Howard; 3d, Robert Morrison.
Ladies' running race, Rock county horses only: 1st, Gladys Martin; 2d, Hazel Hill.
Boys' running race: 1st, Donald Dawson; 2d, Charles Munson; 3d, Clayton Shimeali.
Girls' running race: 1st, Elsie Ward; 2d, Marie McCue; 3d, Dorothy Rice.
Boys' 220 yd. dash: 1st, Dan Dawson; 2d, Charles Munson; 3d, Mike Dawson.

Novelty Race Today.
What will undoubtedly prove one of the most interesting stunts on the big program for today, will be the novelty race to be held on the half mile track, and in which the last horse in, wins the race. Previous to the start all owners exchange horses, so each man has to beat the other. The novelty race will come in last, in the afternoon the free attractions will be running full blast. Big horse acts, aerial gymnasts, and a comedy troupe are offered today. A new stage erected before the grandstand.

Judging of livestock, especially the short horns and the heavy horses, was started this morning, and the interest of these events is at high pitch, and the Rock county men are awaiting anxiously the decisions of the judges.

Start Livestock Contests.
The calf and pig contests were launched today. These events are in reality the finals at which the county champions of district contests will be represented, and are doing their share toward drawing the crowds from all parts of the county.

Tomorrow Milk Day.
Thursday, which has been set as Rock County Milk Producers' day, will be an entirely novel event in fair history, and is sure to bring another record attendance, especially from the farmers throughout the county. The thousands of orders of pure Rock county milk will be given away free by a score of pretty milk maids, as the donation of the Kee and Chapelle Dairy company which has but recently established a bottling plant in this city. On the day a program are addresses on dairying and milk production by some of the most noted of America's milk men. Hugh G. Van Felt, editor of the Kimball Dairy Farmer, will give a dairy cow demonstration and lecture before the grandstand in the morning, to be followed by an address by W. J. Kittle, secretary of the Ohio Milk Producers' association, and a talk by E. Skinner, secretary of the national dairy council.

This program is one which an up-to-date dairy farmer cannot afford to miss, and practically all of the one thousand members of the county association have signified their intention of attending tomorrow. A basket dinner will be served in the grandstand at noon, to be followed by a parade of the association. In the afternoon the big racing program and the other stunts of the fair will be on. "A different fair every day."

Cheer U. S. Troops on Way Through London

London, Aug. 15.—American troops marched through London today. They were reviewed by King George at Buckingham palace. Great crowds lined the streets, decorated profusely with American and British flags. The Americans were cheered by civilians, by soldiers on their way to the front, and by wounded men. A meeting of the cabinet was in progress when the Americans approached Whitehall. It was adjourned to permit the premier and his colleagues to pay the open compliments to the Americans. The cabinet went in a body to the war office.

As the Americans passed the Horse Guards in parade, Whitehall they were greeted from the windows of the war office by Premier Lloyd George, Foreign Secretary Balfour, Chancellor Bonar Law, War Secretary Derby, Winston Churchill, minister of munitions, George N. Barnes, member of the war council, Admiral Jellicoe and other high officials as well as by French and Belgian officers.

The evening papers say that for a parallel to the scenes witnessed today in the neighborhood of Trafalgar Square, it probably would be necessary to recall the time of the South African war and return home of the troops.

TO ISSUE UNIFORMS TO COMPANY M SOON

Camp Douglas, Wis., Aug. 14, 1917.
This morning dawned bright and clear with prospects of a fine day, but by noon it was raining and having so much rain, but will be all dried up by night time.
The tents are all furled today and I am writing this out in the evening to night. As I am sitting here I can look across the regimental grounds and see the high hills all covered with trees and many dangerous, rocky places. The boys are practicing their drills, and the signals, and can be seen from here if one uses a spy glass. It looks rather strange to see every tent in the regiment furled. The tents are all furled, and the side ropes are loosened after the four corner poles are made fast. Then the tent is neatly rolled inward and fastened around the center pole of the tent. The tents are furled two or three times a week. The reason for this is to air the tents and the equipment of the men.

Some of the boys were over on the hills this morning gathering pine poles and birch bark. The pine poles were used for clothes line poles for the cooks. The birch bark was used for the kitchen. The boys are under the orders of the mess sergeant, and the cooks. Our kitchen is considered the cleanest kitchen in the regiment, and it is called so because the cooks are always clean looking and everything in the kitchen of Co. M is kept as clean as possible. There is a day ice posted at each company, and the number of dirty kitchens in the regiment and we feel very proud that Co. M has received an O. K. every day since we have been in camp.

Supply Sergeant C. H. Smith has been busy working with the captain of the supply company and so maybe Co. M will be fitted out in uniforms before the week end. Another thing reported around that we will receive our pay this week. One of the cavalry troops were paid yesterday and celebrated. Of course the town is dry, but many of the boys spend their money on near beer and ice cream. The merchants of Camp Douglas are ways reap a harvest from the boys and the boys are paid. There has been a new open air theatre erected in town and many of the boys will undoubtedly spend quite a sum seeing the movies.

We received a letter from Mr. Hookett saying that we would receive our mascot "Bob" today and all of the boys are anxiously waiting for him. It has been a while since we have seen him and he has been missed because our pastboard dog "Hank" is getting rather worse for wear and his days as company mascot are numbered. We hear that the boys are at an anti-air raid drill and are being issued a collar for "Bob" and we all want to thank them for being so thoughtful at this time. We often miss Bob Hookett's pig in there and wish that we could get a package of cigarettes.

The French lessons started the other day and some of the boys are busy studying their lessons for today. The lieutenant and five sergeants are to take up the study of the language. They are Lieutenants Ryan, Pelton, Sergeant Ryan, Flannery, McKeown, Flannery and Murphy.

For breakfast today we had potatoes, bacon, jam, bread and coffee. For dinner, roast beef, potatoes, butter, coffee and pickles. For supper, butter, coffee, bread, prunes, peaches and coffee.

The detail as posted this morning is as follows:
In charge of quarters—Sergeant Korman.
Patrol—Corporal King, Privates Hilton, Collier, Armstrong, Berry, B. Christian, G. Bester.
Kitchen police—Which is on duty for one full week—Privates E. Ellis, Weeks, Weissner, Wells.

A new Y. M. C. A. tent has been erected near our regimental grounds and our famous quartet will soon be initiating the place.

The mail was heavy again this morning and our boys will undoubtedly be writing home many letters this evening.

COMPANY NOTES.
The boys seem to be taking turns in receiving cakes around the camp. Corporal Johnson and Corporal Beard yesterday and today. We all have the sweet tooth and so the cakes never are wasted.

Mechanic Thiele is feeling rather bad today because he did not withstand the inoculation the other day, but he tells us that he won't stop working unless he has too. Thiele is a worker.

PEACE PLEA
IS DIRECT
FROM POPEAPPEAL TO BELLIGERENTS WRIT-TEN BY HAND OF POPE BEN.
EDICT WITH AID OF AS-SISTANTS.

IS CONCRETE APPEAL

Officials Wait Official Text Which Will Be Cabled From Europe—
Couched in Explicit Terms.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Rome, Aug. 15.—The peace proposals of Pope Benedict, were written entirely in his own hand writing. The pope consulted Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state; Archbishop Ceretti, assistant papal secretary of state; and Monsignor Tedeschini, papal under-secretary of state, in formulating the document.

Archbishop Ceretti who arrived recently from America, where he stopped on his journey from Australia, is now supervising the translation of the communication into English.

Concrete Appeal.
The Journal de l'Italie says the papal appeal is the most impressive and most concrete ever addressed to belligerents, giving them the general lines on which peace negotiations may be initiated. It adds:

"The explicit terms in which the note is worded, lead to the supposition that the intentions of the two belligerent groups were not in absolute conflict with the ideas and hope of the pope."

Sent by Courier.
The pope's peace proposals were sent by couriers to European governments. Arrangements were made to cable the document from England to Washington and Tokyo on account of the time which would be required to forward it to those points by courier or mail.

Await Official Text.
Washington, Aug. 15.—Administration officials today awaited the official text of Pope Benedict's peace proposal before giving any intimation of nature of the reply to be given the Vatican. That the peace offer will require an answer is readily acknowledged by officials, but it is believed that the interest of the allies will require rejection. It is virtually certain that the proposals cannot be accepted in their present form.

Favors Papal Intervention.
Rome, Aug. 15.—The Courier d'Italia, semi-official organ of the Vatican, says that in the course of arbitration destined to avoid future conflict, the Pontifical authority will be worthy of being represented, being a guarantee of the disinterested protection of the interest of peoples.

Men Taken in Draft
To Be Assigned Places
According to Ability

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Washington, Aug. 15.—Army officers who are organizing the national army division face the task of making the best possible use of the men selected for military duty by the local boards. It is the intention of the war department to get the maximum advantage out of each man's special qualifications, and his previous occupation will be carefully considered in assigning him to duty.

Plan Descriptive Lists.
To accomplish this, descriptive lists of all drafted men will be made out as they reach the training cantonment. They will contain in abstract of the life history of the soldier, showing what occupations he has been engaged in. From these a preliminary classification can be made. A process of shifting and transfer undoubtedly will ensue as individuals are sorted out. One man will be assigned to transport trains because of his knowledge of cars or motor trucks. Another to hospital work because of previous training of that kind; still another to the artillery because he shows special ability in that line or his civil occupation has trained his sight and hands. There is hardly a civil trade or occupation that has not its counterpart in the army, and no effort will be spared to get the right man in the right place in the new forces.

Men Make Requests.
Already officials are being besieged with requests from men already held for military duty for assignments to particular arms of the service. Little can be done in that regard in advance of actual mobilization.

Presumably the first increment to reach camp will be organized as an infantry company.

After some weeks of elementary drills, the organization of signals, engineers, artillery, and other special units will commence. At the same time, the officers will begin to get a line on men who are likely candidates for future commissions.

The line then bends southwest and encircles the suburb of St. Lorr Laurent and St. Emille.

MAN IN LIFE FIGHT WITH ENRAGED BEAR

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Duluth, Aug. 15.—How he fought a battle with an enraged mother bear in the woods near Allen Junction, fifty miles from Duluth, was told by Hans Bergson, a Dan homesteader, who lies near death in his cabin as a result of the fight.

Bergson tells he was out cutting brush when he noticed the bear with two cubs near his barn. When the bear saw him pushing back into his log hut for a gun, it cut off the retreat. Finding it impossible to pass the animal, Bergson made a dash for his ax, resting against the tree. The bear followed him and both reached the tree at the same time. Then began the fight, the bear's feet against the ax, the ax into the bear's skull and killed it. He then dragged himself to his house, where a friend found him. Ribbs were broken from his backbones, a gash in his neck and other bad wounds on his neck and body are testimony of the fight.

LUTHERANS CELEBRATE MERGER OF CHURCHES AND REFORMATION

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 15.—The four hundredth anniversary of the Reformation will be celebrated here next Sunday with the completion of the merger of the four great Lutheran synods of Wisconsin, Minnesota and Nebraska. An elaborate program on that day will include a series of events which began today when representatives of the synods gathered here at the first convention of the joint synod.

Though the four divisions making up the joint synod have the name of a state, the territory included in the merger ranges far beyond the state boundaries. The combined synod will include the vast country between Ohio and the Pacific ocean on the east and west and between upper Michigan and Arizona on the north and south. Property valued at $100,000, composed of home mission and endowment funds, will be put under the jurisdiction of the unified body, which will take in 550 pastors and 600 congregations.

The property includes Northwestern college at Watertown, Wis.; Dr. Martin Luther college at New Ulm, Minn.; Northwestern Publishing house, Milwaukee, and Michigan seminary, Saginaw.

Three of the synods affected in the merger have been in existence more than half a century. The Wisconsin synod, oldest and largest, was formed in 1850; the Minnesota synod in 1850, and the Michigan synod in 1859. The Nebraska synod was formed as a branch body of the joint organization, came into existence in 1904. Representatives of the four distinct bodies met together for the first time at Milwaukee in 1892 and then formed the joint synod of Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin to carry on certain work jointly. Each division at that time wanted to maintain its independence, but in 1911 a movement to combine the various bodies was begun, which is to be carried out at the meeting of the delegates assembled in Trinity Lutheran church of St. Paul, whose pastor, the Rev. A. C. Haase, is secretary of the joint synod and president of the anniversary committee.

Officers of the combined body are: President, Rev. C. G. Grawitz, Milwaukee; vice-president, Rev. J. H. Westendorf, Saginaw; secretary, Rev. A. C. Haase, St. Paul; treasurer, W. H. Graebner, Milwaukee.

A musical program of special merit has been arranged for the celebration on Sunday. The "joint anniversary chorus" will sing the famous hymn of Martin Luther, "A Mighty Fortress is Our God, Haydn's 'Ave Maria,' 'Tollens,' Handel's 'Hallelujah Chorus' and Mozart's 'Gloria' will be given by a special orchestra.

The anniversary sermon on Sunday will be given in German by the Rev. Mr. Grawitz. The English anniversary is to be preached by the Rev. Julius Gamm of La Crosse, Wis., and the history of the synod will be given by Prof. Ackerman of New Ulm.

CHILDREN CROWD THE FAIR ON FIRST DAY

HUNDREDS OF YOUNGSTERS TAKE ADVANTAGE OF FREE ADMISSION AND THROG EXHIBITS.

FINE HOME EXHIBITS

Exhibits in Domestic Department of Higher Calibre Than Ever Before—Many Canning Features.

Children, crowds of them, pervaded the fair grounds yesterday. They came early and stayed late. As early as 9 o'clock little groups of excited youngsters were seen everywhere, some accompanied by older people, but many of them taking hold of hands and wandering among the booths, gazing in absorbed interest at the many wonders presented to their view. And they had a proprietary interest, too, in everything. They were in the educational department, pointing out their individual work with pride. "I have got to look up our things," one small boy declared, "all the importance of a railway magazine discussing his holdings. Small girls were gazing with critical eyes upon work exhibited by a rival school, and noting with scorn anything supposedly inferior to those they were interested in.

One pair of small boys were the proud exhibitors of a cage of guinea pigs and they escorted everyone who came into the vicinity to see their pets. The merry-go-round was working overtime, and ice cream cones were popular favorites with the kiddies.

And it was certainly children's day in the educational department, as wonderfully fine exhibits were brought in by them. The door in the space occupied by the grand stand, devoted to this work, is the showing of the rural schools. Here Superintendent E. J. Grawitz, assisted by Miss Sadie Clapp and Miss Rice, have been busy installing the large amount of charts, cut out work, drawing, etc., sent in. The showing of charts, showing of domestic science work is exceptionally fine. In the domestic science work from our local schools, Mrs. Faust, assisted by Miss Louise Nowland and Katherine, were in charge. Dainty hand work in lingerie, blouses and dresses were in evidence, while good looking gowns, hats and coats were displayed in every available space. The cooking exhibit was especially appealing. Art in the grades of the city schools was represented by charts, drawings and maps of various kinds. Manual training in the high school has a good showing of book shelves, racks, chests, pedestals and things of like nature. Prof. West is especially proud of the exhibits from the boys' and girls' city camps. These notes are mostly backyard gardens of small size, but one boy is the proud possessor of an acre and a quarter.

And especially fine display is that brought to the fair by Prof. Waddell of Evansville, as the work of the Evansville city schools. It is very nicely gotten up and is a credit to the schools in every way.

The local training school is represented by a quantity of charts, art drawings, color work and cross stitch and plain sewing done by the pupils of the model school last season under the instruction of Miss Ethel Jenkins. The work of the teachers is also represented by charts, maps, etc.

A large number of specimen plants were already in place on Tuesday, but the cut flowers were not brought in until this morning. So also the culinary delicacies did not arrive until this morning, when the judges began their arduous task of picking out the winners in the several lines.

Special care has been taken by the fair officials to provide plenty of places for drinking water. The rest room has Mrs. Rice in charge and has comfortable, easy chairs for use.

DON'T BE ROAD HOG POLICE WARNING TO AUTOMOBILE DRIVERS

Chief Champion Warns Motorists on Fair Grounds, Routes, Also All Over City, to Observe Care.

Observe Road Rules.
This was the edict issued today by Chief of Police P. D. Champion, and it was meant particularly for auto-bus drivers doing business between downtown and the fair grounds. Of course the private owner is included, but consequent to this being fair week the department expect to have more trouble from the taxi cab driver than from other motorists.

The three words of the chief's order cover a multitude of offenses which are not to be tolerated. Speeding is the first in importance, the chief says. Cutting in or ahead, getting on the wrong side of the highway and "crabbing the road" are not to be permitted.

To insure facts of observation of rights and wrongs a special mounted officer will patrol Milwaukee avenue and back downtown, must observe all rules of the road," Chief Champion says. "There must be no speeding. It will not be tolerated. Neither will we permit cutting in front of the car in front. Crowding is bad and may result in serious accident. If not the latter, it means money lost, for cars seldom strike each other without some one in for repairs of more or less importance.

"Last year during fair week there were several accidents on Milwaukee avenue and all of them were caused by speeding and when a driver attempted to 'cut in' ahead of another car. We do not care for any repetitions this year, so we earnestly request every road user. This applies not only to the route to the fair grounds but all over the city.

FIRST UNITS LEAVE FOR WACO SATURDAY

Camp Douglas, Wis., Aug. 14.—Unless orders to the contrary are received, eleven organizations of soldiers consisting of more than 600 men, will leave for Waco, Texas, Saturday morning to prepare the cantonment at Waco, Tex., for the remainder of the Wisconsin National guard. Announcement of the units selected to move first has not been made.

The hour of departure and the route to be traveled will remain a military secret as a war time protection to the men. Commanders of units, which will comprise the camp building expedition have been notified and the soldiers are preparing to leave. The main body of the guard may remain here several weeks. Saturday's departure of the camp builders indicates work will be rushed on the southern camp.

News Not Confirmed.
The men who have been selected to make the trip will be glad to go, judging from remarks of soldiers. It will mean new scenes and new work. Announcement from Washington that Company E, Fond du Lac, Co. F, Oshkosh, and Co. G, Appleton, of the Second regiment of infantry have been selected as the first units here to go to France, has not been confirmed by officers in camp.

The officers are not in a position to say that three companies from the Second infantry will make an early departure for France, for they are in a position to say why these units have been selected. Whatever information comes to them on this subject is regarded as confidential with the war department.

May Reorganize Army.
It is believed here that in the near future the American army will be reorganized on the basis of the French army to avoid confusion when Uncle Sam's men are sent to relieve the French. The present strength of a division in France is about 10,000 men less than an American division, and news dispatches from Washington indicate that our divisions will be reorganized on the basis of the French force.

This leads to the impression that the three companies selected from the Wisconsin guard may be made part of one of the reorganized divisions in France. It is important, however, officers here are not free to speak.

BARNEY'S NEW CAR IS DEATH DEFYING

Barney Oldfield.

Barney Oldfield's new car, which he will use in races this summer, is said to be the most unique conveyance ever displayed around a race course. It is built of aluminum and is shaped like an egg. It is completely enclosed in a submarine and is lined with steel ribs, which are covered with aluminum. In case the car turns "turtle" these ribs prevent the driver and mechanic from being crushed. The car, fully equipped, weighs slightly more than 1,600 pounds.

THE NATIONAL ARMY.

Up at the Court House they are examining hundreds of men who have been listed for the new national army of the United States, the first draft for which call for five hundred thousand men. It is a new thing to the American citizen to be forced to go to war whether he will or not. It is a new thing for the boards to have to pass upon the exemption claims of the various men listed who pass the physical examination. In New York City, President Wilson has dismissed one district board and punishment in a federal prison is contemplated for the members for their action. Delays are dangerous for the first district board is taking its time. It has many men to examine and many men whose list of exemptions are long and discriminative. How many will be released on the ground of dependent families remains to be seen. Certainly no discrimination should be shown. The boy from the small home should be given just as much consideration as the son of the skunk milk aristocrat's palatial residence. The cream of our young manhood is demanded as a sacrifice upon this altar of the great God, Mars. Even in biblical days, Abraham took his first born ready to sacrifice upon the altar to the great Jehovah and so must we as a nation give our best to the cause which we have entered into. Our national army must be without question the finest drilled, the best equipped and the most efficient army in the world. It is to be a bulwark of peace, but it is to be ready for any emergency at home or abroad. In fact, at home we face a situation which few nations have ever faced. An enemy at home, so subtle, so clever, so sly, that they are hard to detect. We must be prepared to meet any emergency and the stronger our army the better able we will be to impress the "copperhead" and the pro-Germans that the draft selections continue and no matter where they hit, no matter what home they invade, we must all help bear the burden the selection imposes.

PIGS ARE PIGS.

Take a look out at the fair grounds and discover if the old saying that "Pigs are Pigs" is not true. Walk through those cattle stalls and view the backs of those beef cattle and figure out how many nice, fat steaks and roasts are represented there. See the sleek milk cows and wonder why the price of milk has gone up. Then trot over to the sheep preserve and smack your lips as you count the chops and roasts that are in the pens. Yes, pigs are pigs these days and so is every other kind of meat. However, if Rock county continues to produce the grade of stock that is now on exhibition at the Park Association grounds this community will soon be on the map, not merely designated by a red spot, but by a wide, red area as one of the food producing sections of the state. It is worth the average citizen's time to visit the stock exhibit at the fair, even if they do not enjoy the races, and see what is displayed there. Then you can understand the enthusiasm that some show for the county we live in and earn our bread and butter in.

THE BARRICADES.

The city has established barricades at the island—it is rank hereby to call it Goose Island any longer—for the accommodation of the swimmers. It is a step in the right direction, but one which must be followed upon by another season open to the clearing up of the river bed of all snags and rocks that make it dangerous for swimmers and especially so for persons who dive. Suitable swimming places would avoid such sad occurrences as last Sunday when the young husband, a stranger in the city, lost his life while bathing at a dangerous portion of the river that annually takes its toll of human life. One man's life, one boy's life, is worth thousands of dollars when it comes to expense in taking care of bathing places. Even if the playgrounds are to close this week Saturday, it is to be hoped the city fathers will see fit to have an authorized life guard at the island and the rooms open for use during the day and evening.

ABLE BODIED NON-PRODUCERS.

Out on the farms our agricultural are deploring the shortage of help. Yet we have a vast army of sound and able-bodied men performing useless tasks. Take the book agent for example. Any person who wants or needs a book can order it of the nearest news dealer, or visit the nearest store, or write to any publisher. He can do this in much less time than it takes to deal with a loquacious book agent, from whom one usually buys what he never knew he needed, or something which he rarely needs after he gets it.

Other means to house agents and peddlers come in the same class. There is a small army of men picking up a precarious living by selling patent household appliances and clothing from door to door. Many of these things are absolute frauds. Others, if useful, can be bought at the nearest store. You have to pay the agent a very high commission, probably a third on an average. It is wasteful, absolutely non-productive.

And yet we are conducting a war with the greatest military power on earth and there is a question if we are able to feed ourselves and our allies on account of shortage of labor. It would seem funny if it were not so deplorable.

The American people will not tolerate these conditions long under the strain of war. If necessary they can require men who wish to enter useless trades to secure permits. No licenses are needed for peddlers, book agents, hand-organ players and a thousand other deleterious things. If these futile trades could be closed, perhaps some of these industrial slacks could be persuaded to help feed the people.

are hanging back are willing to make a grand lot of noise on any patriotic opportunity.

It is claimed that it will take as long as three months to get together the first army. The requirements of the law may not take this, but it would be dreadful if they did not go through with all their etiquette and red tape motions.

In view of the great amount of land being broken up into gardens, one thing is sure, that the production of rag weed, wormwood, parsley, pigweed, and all other known weeds is going to break all records this year.

The people who are trying to save the country by raising gardens need not feel it necessary to raise so much lettuce and other transient vegetables that will last about two weeks and provide twice as much of these foods as is needed.

The only trouble with the volunteer system for raising an army is that the number of men who consider going to war as a pleasant and healthful method of spending a vacation is strictly limited.

The army recruiting officers are making very strict physical examinations, but no good man should be rejected merely because he has a small mole on his left arm.

Many people about now feel that they are rendering valuable service in a patriotic cause by leaning over the back yard fence and telling their neighbors how to plant their garden.

The principal sign of the fishing season is not so much fresh fish dinners in many families, as the large number of bottles the farmer finds along the streams.

Another of those Hindenburg lines is found waiting to be shaved at the barber shop, when you put off getting your hair cut until Saturday night.

The worst of the horrors of war to many of our congressmen is the shameful delay in providing the requisite number of marble post offices.

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

ROY K. MOULTON

In spite of the fact that they see any number of them every day there is nothing that people know so little about as places. The world is full of all sorts of places. Some places are smaller than others, but none of them is so small that it does not contain several more still smaller. Places are everywhere. You can find them along without them. There are places pleasant and unpleasant and some of the most unpleasant are electric chairs, jailyards, light places, summer camps and last places. Everything in the world has its place, but only a small proportion of the things in the world itself is only a place and a rather crowded place at that.

Remember. Somehow we didn't care to eat, And only thought of whose seat of Was next to ours and whose shy looks Would keep us from our sums and books, And at the table we would sigh, And never even touch our pie, And ma would watch us in distress, And ma would smile and sort of guess, A pair of eyes, both blue and bright, Were what had all our appetite.

Must Be Real Pretty. Through the courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. Ed N. Waterbury we were permitted this morning to enjoy the scenery about their elegant residence on Spriggs street, which is beautifully parked and decorated with vines, flowers and shrubbery, and the entire lawn is well-kept and attractively arranged and designed with artistic skill to present the best effect. The trailing vines reach to the highest point on the roof of the home, and a special object, clothing a portion of the residence with a heavy bank of green. Among the many attractions that ornament the bed and deck the land, some is a display of lilies that captivates the eye and at once wins the enthusiasm of all admirers of rare plants and flowers. Drive on, Henri, and do be careful not to run over any white children!" The sun, yawning bluishly, finished the day's setting.

Evansville News

Evansville, Aug. 15.—The following extracts are from a letter written by Theodore Stair to his wife, Mrs. Stair, New York City, N. Y., Aug. 10, 1917.

Dear Mother: Well, mother, I have been to France and back again. There are some things I want to tell you. Every man you see is in uniform and about half are wounded. They go to the trenches and stay about two months and then they come back home again. (Then they receive about five francs gold a day.) The people are allowed meat two days a week.

Most all the women you see wear black. Next time I write, which will be about a week, I will tell you more about it. I wish you would tell some of the slackers at home that I have been to France, have seen Paris, and in some places the firing was not twenty miles away. But the boys who got over from the U. S. A.—good old home at that—will learn about everything. I also had the pleasure of visiting Gen. Pershing's headquarters again. We were over there about 25,000 men over (by this he probably means the convey of transport). Gen. Pershing was over to the ship four or five times. I hear and I hope all the dear ones at home are the same.

WHOLE ARMY SLEEPS DEEP UNDERGROUND AS MEN FIGHT ABOVE

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

French Front, Aug. 15.—Dozens of divisions of the French army now sleep underground in comparative comfort, even in the front lines when the Germans are hurling tons of their shells of shrapnel on the ground above them, thanks to the work of the companies of excavators formed since the beginning of the war. The men chosen to construct the shelters, which have preserved so many thousands of lives, are soldiers whose ages vary between forty-five and fifty and who would have been unfit for active operations in the trenches of modern battles, where quickness of movement and liveness of limb are absolute necessities. No matter what the nature of the soil, whether hard rock, quicksand, chalk or marshy land, these veterans have overcome all the difficulties and have succeeded in constructing formidable bomb-proof shelters all along the line of the front, from the North Sea to the Swiss frontier until at the present moment any fighting unit arriving at almost any part of the line finds a habitable dug-out awaiting it.

At the beginning of the war the soldiers in the fighting line made their own shelters, which were just holes dug in the ground and covered with tree trunks and earth, and affording very little protection, besides taking very much of the time of the soldiers and costing very much labor and money for transporting the necessary timber.

It was then decided to utilize the older classes of the reserve of the territorial army who had been called to the colors and who, despite their previous military training, had been found unable to bear the strain of campaigning. Several companies of them were formed and they were first given the task of constructing shelters in the Some district and around Verdun. Their officers were chosen from the engineer corps and from men who in civil life were engaged in similar undertakings, such as builders and miners. Most of the men were peasants used to digging in the fields and their work was very satisfactory, but this kind of excavating work was different and they suffered considerably from the unusual motion of having to throw the earth upward, or wheeling it in barrows up steep inclines.

One of the officers overcame this trying difficulty by inventing an apparatus for carrying loosened earth or rock to the surface by use of electric power. By this arrangement two men can do the work formerly done by ten. When the earth has reached the surface it falls into barrows and is wheeled away along the level ground and distributed about in such a manner as not to attract the attention of the enemy's aeroplanes, always flying about the lines to observe what is going on in the opposing position.

Special army saw-mills have been started to provide the props and planking for the shelters, and everything is done at minimum cost.

The veterans so employed have sustained losses when working in exposed positions, but no danger of being shot by the enemy's aeroplanes, always flying about the lines to observe what is going on in the opposing position.

NO INFORMATION NOW ON DRAFT EXEMPTIONS

LOCAL BOARD WILL HOLD TO POLICY OF ABSOLUTE SE-
CRECY UNTIL EXAMIN-
ATIONS ARE OVER.

ALL BUT SIX APPEAR

Few Fail to Present Themselves for Examinations on First Day—
Hundred More Up Today and Tomorrow.

With one-third of the examinations for the second group of three hundred men called to fill this district's quota of 152 men for the national army, completed, the local exemption board has decided to hold to its original policy of absolute secrecy regarding decisions, until the cases are acted upon by the board at the end of the examination period. This policy while meeting with some disfavor among the men up for examination, who are naturally anxious to learn the outcome of the physical tests, is in the belief of the board the only safe procedure and the only really fair one.

The doctors who make the examinations are not in a position to state whether a man is exempted or not. He is supplied with a blank form upon which the various physical examinations are recorded, but the board itself determines whether these are sufficient to pass the man. This is not done until the examinations have been completed.

In some cases it is evident to the examining physician that the applicant is unfit for service, he has no official right to inform the man of this. The board will start the consideration of the three hundred cases making up this second group on Friday, and will push the work to a speedy completion.

Of the one hundred men called up yesterday, all but six appeared for their examinations. Of the six, some received permission to be examined in other cities, so that the percentage of those who appear is very high.

The board is not in a position to say whether it runs up to fifteen per cent or even more. All those who do not appear for examination on the day assigned are automatically passed up to the next group of the national army, while their cases are turned over to the federal authorities to determine upon any possible punishment.

Long before nine o'clock this morning the halls at the court house had filled with young men awaiting their examinations, and the drafting board was prepared to rush the men through with all possible speed. Yesterday no delays were experienced, and the board finished up its quota of one hundred in the allotted time. Today the second hundred are up, while tomorrow the third hundred called to make up the district deficit will appear.

Y. M. C. A. INSTALLING NEW LOCKER ROOMS

The business men's locker rooms, which were located on the north side of the Y. M. C. A. building, adjoining the bowling alley, have been changed to a room on the south side of the building. The room now prepared for the men is the room formerly occupied by the junior boys, and is a much larger room than the one in use last season. A complete supply of lockers have been installed, so as to accommodate a larger crowd of men at one time. Last winter the business men's quarters were cramped, but the inconvenience will be removed by the present alteration.

Much more light can be had in the new room and it will be ventilated from four large windows. Rubber mats will be placed in front of the lockers. A large settee will be another feature of the new room and men wishing to lie down and rest may do so.

An assistant secretary will be stationed behind the desk at the foot of the stairs, to have charge of the lower floor, and from him can be procured towels, soap, etc., which were formerly secured from the desk upstairs.

Junior Boys' Room.

The junior boys' room will be located in the old storeroom, a little smaller room than the one formerly occupied by them, but plenty large enough to accommodate all in this division. Both the junior boys' and the business men's rooms are being newly decorated.

New Boiler.

PLAN BENEFIT DANCE FOR COMPANY M BOYS

Affair Planned for Thursday Night to Boost Camp Fund of Janeville Unit at Camp Douglas.

Arrangement was formulated on the spur of the moment yesterday afternoon, and as the result little time was left for advertising. But nevertheless the fact that the dance is being held will attract any number of people, many of whom will come solely for the purpose of adding their bit for the benefit of the boys who have volunteered their services.

Music for the party was secured last night. It is planned to have a good program for both young and old dancers. Tickets will be fifty cents.

News Notes from Movieland

BY DAISY DEAN

The characters in "The Fall of the Romanoffs," to be released this fall, includes half a dozen international figures. The czar and the Kaiser are both important characters in the story, and other notables who figure prominently in the action are the czar's son, the Grand Duke Nicholas, Prince Felix, Rasputin and, of course, the mad monk, this role being assumed by Hlodor, the real character.

Nance O'Neill, famous stage and screen star, is the Zarina, whose plotting against her own country was one of the direct causes of the revolution. Alfred Deussenberg, a well known French actor, is strangely enough chosen to play the Kaiser. Charles Craig, plays the heroic Prince Nicholas.

HART'S OWN STORY

William S. Hart wrote the story for his next picture, on which production was begun last week, "Raggs," the queer doc which has been sent in under the title "Raggs" and "Fitz," the Plato pony, will share honors with the western badman star in Mr. Hart's own story, written about incidents of pioneer days, related to the actor by Richard D. Wainwright, a friend of Hart's father, who lived in the Dakotas, on adjoining ranches with the Hart family, when William S. received his first lessons in frontier life. On his recent tour through the east, Mr. Hart met Wainwright in Minneapolis, and they spent a half day at St. Anthony Falls near Minneapolis, which were "harnessed" under the supervision of Mr. Hart's father at a time when Wainwright was his principal assistant, and following a number of years spent together in the Dakotas. The stories related by Wainwright of early pioneer times, give plot and atmosphere for Mr. Hart's story. No name has been selected for this production.

Ernie Wilbur and Juanita Hansen make up a new combination. Both are experienced screen performers, and deservedly popular. Director Lorimer Johnston, who made the "Gloria" serial, will direct their work.

U. S. MUST GET IN CLOSER TOUCH WITH FRIENDLY ALIEN, SAYS FRANCES KELLOR

Miss Frances Kellor.

"America is not going to solve the problem of the enemy alien until she solves the problem of the friendly alien," says Miss Frances Kellor, assistant to the chairman of the national Americanization committee. She is positive in the declaration that if the United States wishes to avoid a recurrence of the East St. Louis riots, or the labor troubles which resulted in the deportation of the I. W. W. sympathizers from Bisbee, Ariz., then the nation must make a great effort to bring the friendly aliens into closer touch with America's standard of living.

and designs will also be classed herein, and with them many other inviting features.

Women's Part in the Fair

Women's industry and handiwork will help in many ways to produce articles that are important to the success of a Fair. A department of the fair set apart for her productions, was a wise thought, as it enables the public to get a glimpse of the assembled products of her skill, and let the world know more of her genius, her tastes and her prowess.

Proceeding from this viewpoint, we aim to present among other things, an exhibition of woman's products in which woman is interested, and one which will represent, in no small degree, her labor and patience.

We wish to have this department grandly filled and invite a large contribution. Let every lady in this community bring one article, at least, and place it upon exhibition.

A Veritable Ladies Bazaar

Representing her genius and thrift, Sewing, Knitting, Crochet, Fancy Work, Textile Fabrics, Garments, etc.

The latest styles, the richest materials and the most elegant masterpieces of creative and decorative skill and art in needlework.

The Hall will be presided over by competent, careful and obliging superintendents. Unusual pains will be taken to trim and decorate it with artistic skill, to embellish it with uncommonly rich and beautifying adornments, thus, if possible, to add to the natural elegance of such an exhibition, the splendor of a fascinating finish and superiority.

A GOOD TIME TO RENEW OLD ACQUAINTANCES

at the Fair—one day at least. The Press and Public unite in saying that this Fair has been tried and always found True to every Test.

Heart and Home Problems

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Illustration of a woman's face, likely Mrs. Thompson, used for the 'Heart and Home Problems' column.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am not married in September and as I am not wearing a blue suit, will you please tell me what kind of a hat and shoes I should wear?

(2) After a couple of years, is it necessary to send announcements to friends living in the same town, when the marriage has been published in the daily papers?

(3) Is it proper not to send out announcements to friends who are already married?

(4) My back teeth get black, although I clean them two and three times a day with tooth powder. Can you recommend something that will prevent this?

(5) What is good to cure dandruff, and how can I keep the ends of my hair from splitting? I have had it styled, but that does not seem to do any good.

I think your advice to girls is very good, and I think it should be followed by every young girl who reads your column. Girls do not realize what they are doing by letting every boy who happens along "love" them, until they meet the right man, and then it is too late.

(6) Suit your own taste when you pick out your hat and shoes. Get what will be most suited to your needs.

(7) Announcements are sent whether or not the announcement of the marriage has been in the daily paper.

(8) A great many people do not send out announcement cards. It is a nice way of letting your friends know of your marriage, but it isn't necessary in case you don't want to do it.

(9) Buy a nail rouge. It will give them a transparent look, and keep them from being too white.

(10) Consult your dentist. They need a thorough cleaning from a dentist. He will suggest something to use that will better the condition.

(11) Apply a little vaseline to your scalp every night, or every other night, and you will find the morning brush your hair thoroughly. This will prevent the splitting, when the hair becomes softer, and it will cure the dandruff.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a beautiful young maiden of fifteen and am considered to be a dandy sort of girl. I care for dress, society and enjoyment. I read your advice each day and think it is all right. Do you think I am too young to go to balls and dances if properly chaperoned? I am very fond of dancing and am somewhat talented for it. I have light hair and blue eyes. I have a habit of evening gown do you think would be suitable to wear to an evening ball?

ANXIOUS.

You are decidedly too young to go to dances with grown-up people or to wear evening gowns. Even if chaperoned, a girl of fifteen should not be going to evening affairs, but should confine her social activities to parties and things of that kind. Perhaps if you do not change and become more modest and less boastful about your looks, you will soon lose your pretentiousness. A person's thoughts tell upon her appearance, and such vanity as you show is unusually bad taste. I should think that with your color eyes and light hair you could wear any of the light shades of blue.

THE BUSINESS OF LIVING

Eleanor Realize That It Is A Lack of Push That Hinders Douglas's Progress.

"Douglas, that young man I was telling you about who is chemist at the firm of Barney & Co., has been promoted." Eleanor laid down Jack's letter and looked up at her husband.

"That will mean a vacancy in the office," said Douglas, looking at his wife.

"I don't know," said Eleanor, "but I remember Jack told about his coming into the office, and he was there and asking for a raise because he could not live on two thousand a year."

"That he was married?" she asked.

"Two thousand," repeated Douglas.

"That is the young man to draw salaries now."

"Why not write to Mr. Barney and ask for the position?" suggested Eleanor.

"It would do no good," was the discouraged answer. "He has some one in mind for the place without a question."

"Even if that were so—and you know nothing of the kind—it would do no harm to apply for it," urged Eleanor.

"The man has done so much for us that I hate to be thrusting myself on his attention again and—"

"He has been very kind," said Eleanor, "but as he is being under obligations to him I don't see that we are. He gave Jack a position without ever having seen or heard of him before. Surely that was purely a business proposition, and I am sure Jack has earned every cent he has received, for he is a willing little fellow. He has earned his promotions. They were no gifts."

Douglas's look of amusement sent the red into Eleanor's face. "Well, now, what he said about his aptitude for business," she offered in extenuation.

"I am sure he is a faithful little fellow," Douglas said with the laugh all gone from his eyes. "But I suppose you know how dread to ask for it." Douglas looked at his wife and saw that Eleanor rose and seated herself on the arm of his chair before she spoke again.

"Why call it asking favors, dear heart? Here is a vacant place in a firm considered one of the best in the city. You do not know whether your position is open to you or not. You know this is much better paying one than the one you had."

"I know, but I have not the push necessary to get on in this congested business world," said Eleanor.

"You are driven to the wall and I can't shove any more than I can when I am getting on a car. I simply wait till the elbow is jamming through, and then I take what is left. I am not in the business as it must be conducted to succeed. I am not a dollar chaser, and my family must be poorly provided for in consequence of my laziness. I am not the man to be led by the hand on the head on his hand."

Eleanor took his face between her hands and turned it. "Dear heart," she said gently, "what you say is true. That a man must be ruthless and selfish to succeed in the business world today. I believe you are right when you say it is necessary to be ruthless. Build your strength by converting this weakness into strength. Win this retreating sensitiveness over to be a servant to you. It means ability to know what others are thinking and that is tact. A man can not go far without tact. It is the quality which is the key to success. You must see it. It can never become real till you have seen it vividly as a real thing. I know what I am talking about. I had had a protected life all my life. I felt that I could not go forth to earn my living, but it seemed that I was the one to do it. I conquered the cowardly if in an all night wrestle and saw myself succeeding and able to support my children and keep a home for them. Thank God, I do not have to do it. Give me Barney's address. I will write at once."

Iron Is Greatest Of All Strength Builders, Says Doctor

A Secret of the Great Endurance and Powers of Athletes.

Ordinary Nourished Iron Will Make Delicate, Nervous, Run-down People 100 Per Cent. Stronger in Two Weeks' Time in Many Cases.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Most people foolishly seem to think they are going to get more health and strength from a "delicate" medicine, secret nostrum or "cure-all" drug, said Dr. E. Sauer, a Houston physician who has studied under both the University of Texas and the University of California, and in Great European Medical Institutions when, as a matter of fact, real strength can only come from the food you eat. People often fail to get the strength out of their food because they haven't enough iron in their blood. It is not to change food into living energy, but to change food into living energy, that the secret of the great endurance and powers of athletes lies. It is a most potent remedy, in nearly all forms of indigestion, as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in this iron that they put it to the test for ten years. They have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by Smith Drug Co., and all other druggists.

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

From a correspondent:

"In June, 1916, I had a small wart removed from my chest near the little dipper of my neck directly under the chin, by a specialist in Los Angeles who was recommended to me as a reliable person—an electrolysis. She removed the wart with chloride of zinc, which caused a sore spot and spread to the size of a silver dollar before it finally healed. The result is an unsightly red scar. If possible, I would like to have the scar removed."

ANSWER—Mix crude petroleum (not kerosene) and balsam of Peru, equal parts, and pour upon head enough to overflow upon neck, brow and temples. Then rub it in with a piece of white flannel. Do the head up in a towel and leave for 12 to 24 hours. All lice and nits will then be destroyed. Now a thorough shampoo with soap and water, several rinsings with warm water, dry thoroughly and gently rub into the scalp a little vaselin. Never cut a girl's or woman's hair.

Boy Who Needs a Spanking.

With cigarette smoking, cause pimples on the face? I am 17 years old and weigh only 105 pounds. How can I increase my weight to about 180 normal?

ANSWER—If you are the worst result you are to suffer from cigarettes, call yourself lucky. What you need is a sound churning. You will remain below weight and below par every other way, physically, mentally and morally, unless you quite the tobacco habit right now.

My 16-year-old daughter is 62 inches tall and weighs 164 pounds. She eats a good deal of candy. Would that cause her to weigh so much? She also has a red, goose-flesh skin on her arms.

ANSWER—Candy certainly makes girls fat, but perhaps the extreme overweight of your daughter is attributable to hypophyseal dystrophy, a condition of the thyroid gland, trouble. Ask your doctor about it. She should apply equal parts of glycerin and rain water to arms every day.

There is something akin to the popular love for salves of saffron odor in the habit of resorting to dangerous caustics for the treatment of warts, and yet observe skin cancers and other local or minor lesions. People just love to monkey with such things, and no amount of warning will stop them from gratifying the inborn yearning.

Wherever the little dipper lies in the correspondent's empyrean, the quick, absolutely safe, painless and effective way to remove a wart is by using it out early in the day, sharp scalps under a local anesthetic. This leaves less noticeable scar than any other means. At any rate, it is the method we would prefer if the wart or cancer of skin cancer, or other local or minor lesions, may be removed on our soft, cowardly hide.

Caustics were probably useful enough in the dark ages, prior to the discovery of anesthetics and aseptics. They may even have a place today in the far country where no skilled physician is to be consulted. But in a growing village the size of Los Angeles it is entirely possible that there are several physicians quite competent to treat at least warts in an intelligent manner.

I am a poor, ignorant bachelor, and I have as my guest for the summer, a little girl of five whose hair is infested with lice and nits. Can you tell me how to get rid of them?

Do the head up in a towel and leave for 12 to 24 hours. All lice and nits will then be destroyed. SEA GULLS AS AID AGAINST SUBMARINES

Washington, Aug. 15.—Life was an earnest inventor and the August item hadn't gone to his head, either, he said. He wanted to help his country and suggested this means of killing the U-boat.

"Prevent all merchant ships from stowing garbage on the ocean. Then the sea gulls wouldn't trail the ships, when take some time to S. submarines, and throw food out from them to the gulls. Very simple. Gulls learn to associate periscope with food. Follow up its periscope, throw pops up its periscope, white gulls circle about for food. Destroyer notes gulls; knows they mean periscope. Kill U-boat. The U-boats still gather their toll."

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest

THE FISHERMAN.

Along a stream that raced and ran through tangled trees and o'er stones.

That long had heard the pipes o' pan,

And shared the joys that nature

I met a fellow fisherman,

Who greeted me in cheerful tones.

The lines of care were on his face.

I guessed that he had buried dead;

Had run for gold full many a race,

And kept great problems in his head.

But in that gentle resting place

No word of wealth or fame he said.

He showed me trout that he had caught.

And praised the larger ones of mine.

Told me how that big beauty fought

And almost broke his silken line;

Spoke of the trees and sky, and thought

Them proof of life and power divine.

There man to man we talked of trees

And birds, as people talk of men;

Hair Often Ruined
By Washing With Soap

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.
The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mild coconut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.
One or two teaspoonsful will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.
You can get mulsified coconut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

The Real Man

"I know," he said, replying after the reflective pause, to the charge passed on by Colonel Dexter. "There is a friend of mine here from the East, and I have been obliged to show her some attention, so they say I am neglecting my job. They are also talking it around that I am your Jonah, and saying that your only hope is to pitch me overboard."
"That's Dave Kinzie," growled the Missourian. "He seems to have it in for you, some way."
"Nevertheless, he was right," Smith returned gloomily. Then: "I am about at the end of my rope, colonel—the rope I warned you about when you brought me here and put me into the saddle; and I'm trying desperately to hang on until my job's done. When it is done, when Timanyoni High Line can stand fairly on its own feet and fight its own battles, I'm gone."
"Oh, no, you're not," denied the ranchman-president in generous protest. "You come on out home with me tonight and get away from this mudflat for a few minutes. It'll do you a heap of good; you know it always does."
Smith shook his head reluctantly but dimly.
"Never again, colonel. It can only be a matter of a few days now, and I'm not going to pull you and your wife and daughter into the limelight if I can help it."

"Are They Sure-Enough Chasing You, John?"

Colonel Dexter got out of his chair and walked to the office window. When he came back it was to say: "Are they sure- enough chasing you, John?—for something that you have done? Is that what you're trying to tell me?"

"That is it—and they are nearly here. Now you know at least one of the reasons why I can't go with you tonight."

"I'll be shot if I do!" stormed the generous one. "I promised the missus I'd bring you."

"You must make my excuses to her, and to Cora, you may say that I am once more carrying a gun. She will understand."

"Which means, I take it, that you've been telling Cora more than you've told the rest of us. That brings or more talk, John. I haven't said a word before, have I?"

"No."

"Well, I'm going to say it now: I've got only just one daughter in the wide wide world, John."

Smith stood up and put his hands behind him, facing the older man squarely.

"Colonel, I'd give ten years of my life, this minute, if I might go with you to Hillcrest this evening and tell Cora what I have been wanting to tell her ever since I have come to know what her love might make of me. The fact that I can't do it is the bitterest thing I have ever had to face, or can ever be made to face."

Colonel Baldwin fell back into his swing-chair and thrust his hands into his pockets.

"Not?"
"That was white, anyway. And now I suppose the other woman—this Miss Rich—something-or-other over at the hotel—has come and dug you up and got you on the end of her trailing rope. That's the way it goes when a man mixes and mingles too much. You never can tell."

"Hold on," Smith interposed. "Whatever else I may be, I'm not that kind of a scoundrel. I don't owe Miss Richlander anything that I can't pay without doing injustice to the woman I love. But in another way I am a scoundrel, colonel. For the past two days I have been contemptible enough to play upon a woman's vanity merely for the sake of keeping her from talking too much."

The grizzled old ranchman shook his head sorrowfully.

"I didn't think that of you, John; I sure didn't. Why, that's what you might call a low-down, tin-horn sort of a game."

"It is just that, and I know it as well as you do. But it's the price I have to pay for my few days of grace. Miss Richlander knows the Stanton's; they've made it their business to get acquainted with her. One word from her to Crawford Stanton, and a wire from him to my home town in the middle West would settle me."

The older man straightened himself in his chair, and his steel-gray eyes blazed suddenly.

"Break away from 'em, John!" he urged. "Break it off short, and let 'em all do their worst! Away along to the first, Williams and I both said you wasn't a crooked crook, and I'm believing it yet. When it comes to the show-down, we'll all fight for you, and they'll have to bring a derrick along if they want to snatch you out of the Timanyoni. You go over yonder to the Hoprah House and tell that young woman that the bride's off, and she can talk all she wants to!"

"No," said Smith shortly. "I know what I am doing, and I shall go on as I have begun. It's the only way. Matters are desperate enough with us now, and if I should drop out—"

The telephone bell was ringing, and Baldwin twisted his chair to bring himself within reach of the desk set. The message was a brief one, and at its finish the ranchman-president was frowning heavily.

"By Jupiter! it does seem as if the bad luck all comes in a bunch!" he protested. "Williams was rushing things just a little too fast, and they've lost a whole section of the dam by stripping the forms before the concrete was set. That puts us back another twenty-four hours, at least. Don't that beat the mischief?"

Smith reached for his hat. "It's six o'clock," he said; "and Williams' form-strippers have furnished one more reason why I shouldn't keep Miss Richlander waiting for her dinner." And with that he cut the talk short and went his way.

With a blank evening before her, Miss Richlander, making the tete-a-tete dinner count for what it would, tightened her hold upon the one man available, demanding excitement. Nothing else offering, she suggested an evening auto drive, and Smith dutifully telephoned Maxwell, the railroad superintendent, and borrowed a runabout.

Smith drove the borrowed runabout in sober silence, and the glorious beauty in the seat beside him did not try to make him talk. Perhaps she, too, was busy with thoughts of her own. At all events, when Smith had helped her out of the car at the hotel entrance and had seen her as far as the elevator, she thanked him half absently and took his excuse, that he must return the runabout to Maxwell's garage, without laying any further commands upon him.

Just as he was turning away, a bell-boy came across from the clerk's desk with a telegram for Miss Richlander. Smith had no excuse for lingering, but with the air thick with threats he made the tugging of the boy answer for a momentary stop-gap. Miss Verda tore the envelope open and read the inclosure with a fine-lined little frown coming and going between her eyes.

"It's from Tucker Jibbey," she said, glancing up at Smith. "Someone has told him where we are, and he is following us. He says he'll be here on the evening train. Will you meet him and tell him I've gone to bed?"

At the mention of Jibbey, the money-spelled son of the man who stood next to Jostah Richlander in the credit ratings, and Lawrenceville's best imitation of a flaneur, Smith's first emotion was one of relief at the thought that Jibbey would at least divide time with him in the entertainment of the bored beauty; then he remembered that Jibbey had once considered him a rival, and that the sham "rounder's" presence in Brewster would constitute a menace more threatening than all the others put together.

"I can't meet Tucker," he said bluntly.

"You know very well I can't."

"That's so," was the quiet reply. "Of course you can't. What will you do when he comes?—run away?"

"No; I can't do that, either. I shall keep out of his way, if I can. If he finds me and makes any bad breaks, he'll get what's coming to him. If he's worth anything to you, you'll put him on the stage in the morning and send him up into the mountains to join your father."

"The idea!" she laughed. "He's not coming out here to see father. Poor Tucker! If he could only know what he is in for!" Then: "It is beginning to look as if you might have to go still deeper in debt to me, Montague. There is one more thing I'd like to do before I leave Brewster. If I'll promise to keep Tucker away from you, will you drive me out to the Baldwins' tomorrow afternoon? I want to see the colonel's fine horses, and he has invited me, you know."

Smith's eyes darkened. "There is a limit, Verda, and you've reached it," he said quickly. "If the colonel invited you to Hillcrest, it was because you didn't leave him any chance not to. I resign in favor of Jibbey," and with that he handed her into the waiting elevator and said, "Good-night."

On the day following the hindering concrete failure at the dam, Smith gave still more color to the charges of his detractors in the business field. Those whose affairs brought them in contact with him found a man suddenly grown years older and harder, boody and harshly dictatorial, not to say quarrelsome; a man who seemed to have parted, in the short space of a single night, with all of the humanizing affabilities which he had shown to such a marked degree in the reorganizing and refinancing of the irrigation project.

"We've got our young Napoleon of finance on the toboggan slide, at last," was the way in which Mr. Crawford Stanton phrased it for the beleaguered lady at their luncheon in the Hoprah cafe. "Kinzie is about to throw him over, and all this talk about botch-work on the dam is getting his goat. They're telling it around town this morning that you can't get near him without risking a fight. Old Man Backus went up to his office in behalf of a bunch of the scared stockholders, and Smith abused him first and then threw him out bodily—hurt him pretty savagely, they say."

"There is a limit, Verda."

The large lady's accurately penciled eyebrows went up in mild surprise. "Bad temper?" she queried.

"Bad temper, or an acute attack of 'rattles'; you can take your choice. I suppose he hasn't, by any chance, quarreled with Miss Richlander overnight?—or has he?"

The fat lady shook her diamonds. "I should say not. They were at luncheon together in the ladies' ordinary as I came down a few minutes ago."

Thus the partner of Crawford Stanton's joys and sorrows. But an invisible onlooker in the small dining room above-stairs might have drawn other conclusions. Smith and the daughter of the Lawrenceville magnate had a small table to themselves, and if the talk were not precisely quarrelsome, it leaned that way at times.

"I have never seen you quite so brutal and impossible as you are today, Montague. You don't seem like the same man. Are you going to reconsider and take me out to the Baldwin ranch this afternoon?"

"What makes Piffle smile?"

"More brutality. Positively you are getting me into a frame of mind in which Tucker Jibbey will seem like a blessed relief. Whatever do you suppose has become of Tucker?"

"How should I know?"

"If he had come in last night, and you had met him—as I asked you to—in any such heavenly temper as you are indulging now, I might think you had murdered him."

It was doubtless by sheer accident that Smith, reaching at the moment for the salad oil, overturned his water glass. But the small accident by no means accounted for the sudden graying of his face under the Timanyoni wind tan—for that or for the shaking hands with which he seconded the waiter's anxious efforts to repair the damage. When they were alone again, the momentary trepidation had given place to a renewed hardness that lent a biting rasp to his voice.

Dinner Stories

"Please, sir, give a poor blind man a copper," said a beggar to a gentleman.

"But you are not blind," remarked the gentleman.

"No, but my partner is. He is standing down there at the corner to see if a policeman is coming."

Dr. L. O. Howard of "typhoid fly" fame told this fly story:

"A Washington man went for his vacation to a J-haunted hotel in Connecticut. There was a hammock in the grove behind the hotel, and one afternoon our friend climbed in to it with pipe and book. But the flies tormented him unmercifully, so he climbed out again in disgust.

"Look here, landlord," he complained, as he entered the office, "what's the good of a hammock in such a fly-ridden spot as that grove?"

"Oh," said the landlord, "you didn't use the hammock during hammock hours."

"What are hammock hours?" asked the guest.

"Twelve to two, sir," said the landlord. "You'll find no flies in the grove then, sir."

"And why not?" demanded the puzzled guest.

"Because," said the landlord, "12 to 2 is dinner, and they're all in the dining room then."

"You look sad, Birdie—what's the matter?"

"I'm not feeling well."

"Are you sick?"

"No, I'm not precisely sick; but I feel tired, overworked."

"Do tell me all about it."

"Well, you see, our cook is sick, and my poor mother has to do all the cooking, scrubbing and washing and ironing, and it makes me feel tired to see her work so hard."

COLD STORAGE LAW
RULES MADE SOON

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., Aug. 15.—To work out the rules under the new cold storage law enacted at the last session of the Legislature, State Dairy and Food Commissioner George J. Wiegler will hold a conference at Milwaukee on Aug. 22 with the "cottage" house operators. The Donnell Storage Co. passed at the last session of the Legislature, becomes operative Sept. 1.
The law is to be enforced by the state dairy and food department and its deputies. Storage houses hereafter will be licensed by that state department. In the city of Milwaukee the license fee is fixed at $40 annually; in cities over 40,000 inhabitants, $50; in cities with over 10,000 inhabitants, $20; and under 10,000 inhabitants, $10. The license will be granted only after the department or one of its inspectors have certified that the place is in a sanitary condition.
Only articles fit for human consumption shall be placed in storage. A careful record must be kept of all food placed in storage and of the disposition made of the same. The day of the month shall be plainly marked on all articles received.
Under the terms of the law, whenever cold storage foods are kept or offered for sale in any store, wagon or other place, where goods are sold at retail, a placard on the bulk mass of goods must be displayed plainly marked "Cold Storage Goods." The term "Cold Storage" shall include eggs other than cold storage eggs that have been held or stored for a period of forty days or over in slacked lime, liquid glass, oil, bran, sawdust or by any other method than artificial refrigeration.
Articles shall not be held in cold storage for a longer period than twelve months, except with the special permit of the dairy and food department, and such permit shall not be granted for a longer period of time than sixty days. The law specifically controls sanitation and carries heavy penalties for violations.

SAUER KRAUT OUTLOOK PROMISING IN U. S.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Washington, Aug. 15.—Uncle Sam has been lured to employ pro-German methods to save America's cabbage crop. The emergency bureau of the department of agriculture today reported that tremendous rains have given us a whopper cabbage crop and that unless thousands of heads of it are at once turned into sauer-kraut, it will be lost.
Despite the fact that we're at war with Germany, sauer-kraut is so popular in this country that the price has taken a big jump. It is an easy and exceedingly profitable way to handle surplus cabbage. Last year a million dollars' worth of cabbage went the sauer-kraut route.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 14.—The third annual session of the national body of Women's Catholic Order of Foresters opened a several days' session on Tuesday with approximately one thousand delegates in attendance. The convention opened with pontifical high mass. Archbishop Messner officiating and Rev. C. E. McBride preaching the sermon.

INJURED TOMMIES HAVE PRIVATE AID TO WRITE LETTERS

Washington, Aug. 15.—Every Sammie in France will have a secretary to write letters to his folks if he is too badly wounded or too busy swatting the Huns to do it himself.

Adjutant General McCain has arranged the same secretariat system for the first 187,000 draft Sammies in cantonment camps in this country this fall. And for the million men, likewise.

"Our plan to enable friends and relatives of American soldiers to get prompt information as to their welfare," said General McCain today, "will require the services of about 1,200 officers, enlisted men and field clerks." World headquarters for this organization, which is already at work, will be in the State, War and Navy Building in Washington. It is known officially as "The Statistical Division."

In addition to writing letters and postcards, the duties of members of the division will include gathering information concerning individuals at general, divisional, regimental and company headquarters, field and base hospitals, ports of embarkation and camps. This country where troops are mobilized and trained.

Handling inquiries concerning prisoners of war, both German prisoners in America and American prisoners in Germany. A big training school for these Sammies' secretaries has been established at the war department and is in operation now. Officers of the division are being selected from the officers' training camps and will be sent to France and to places in this country as soon as trained.

"Every company of American soldiers everywhere," said General McCain, "will be accompanied by one or more of these men regularly stationed with it and part of whose job will be to know the men in the company."

This man will report to the regimental statistical division, which will be specially charged with the preparation and forwarding of casualty lists and data on the wounded or seriously ill. In formation will likewise be reported as to all civilians accredited with the army.

The organization will finally be completed by having a regimental section with each regiment. This will be in charge of the regular adjutant, assisted by the chaplain. General McCain wishes all Sammies their relatives and friends to make full use of this secretariat division. Word can be gotten home, he feels, more expeditiously by the Sammie through one of the division's form postcards than by any other means except expensive cable.

These postcards are official and do not have to be delayed for censoring. If unable to write himself, his stationary field secretary will gladly do it for the Sammie.

MAY ESTABLISH BIG ARMOUR CONDENSORY AT MILTON JUNCTION

Milton Junction, Aug. 15.—A committee of farmers and business men have been working upon the proposition of a milk condensing plant at Milton Junction. A big training school for these Sammies' secretaries has been established at the war department and is in operation now. Officers of the division are being selected from the officers' training camps and will be sent to France and to places in this country as soon as trained.

Mr. Paddock of the Armour company offered to build a condensory if four thousand cows were pledged. Our local men immediately got busy, divided the territory, and made a canvass Monday, with the pleasing result of five thousand four hundred and thirty cows pledged, all within a radius of six miles of town. It is now up to the Armour company.

RED CROSS SEARCH FOR MISSING TOMMIES

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
London, Aug. 15.—Of the thousands of British families who have waited in dread anxiety for final news of loved ones posted as "missing," few have known how much effort was being made to relieve their fears. The fact that the army continues a large corps of men who spend all their time searching for missing men is not generally known.

These searchers, now an important branch of the Red Cross, are the result of a visit paid to France by Lord Robert Cecil in the early days of the war. He had gone to seek for news of a friend among comrades who had taken part in the engagement. The result was the organization of the searchers department.

The hospitals are the principal one of the searchers' work. With a book containing the names of men missing for many months, they make the rounds, following up clues and suggestions that may lead to the clearing up of the individual's whereabouts. The work requires tact and intelligence and, above all, patience.

PRACTICALLY ALL DOGS
IN CITY NOW LICENSED

To date City Clerk J. P. Hammarlund's records show that a total of 577 dog licenses have been issued for the year. This is approximately twenty-five less than the number of tags bought last year. It is the belief of city officials that nearly every dog in the city is tagged according to ordinance.

'Le Chemin Des Dames' Battle As Terrific As Famous Repulse Of Germans At "Verdun"

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
With the French Armies on the Aisne, Aug. 14—"Le Chemin des Dames," the historic "Ladies' Road," is no longer a place for ladies.

It is only a place for men—men who know how to fight and die. The daily battles now raging along the Chemin des Dames equal in intensity and fierceness the historic combats last year at Verdun.

These Chemin des Dames attacks launched on a restricted front with all the concentrated resources that Germany has left for the purpose of retaking or obliterating a salient, lack none of the determination and desperation of the Verdun assaults.

No war correspondent or civilian has been permitted to approach the place there can only be learned from the survivors who come back after a week's defense of the road. The story of one is the story of all—differing only in detail and not in kind. The following is one of many thousands:

"The battalions of chasseurs we were to relieve had passed an agitated period that included violent attacks by the Germans with ensuing influx and reflux.

"To reach our front lines we must cross the first and second lines of the famous Hindenburg position all of which in this locality has been captured by us. Our artillery has completely demolished every bombproof and shelter of the original Hindenburg line, and for us it is a question of sleeping under the open sky and glimmering stars.

"Our officers go forward to reconnoiter the ground. As the officers talk together a Boche marmite falls. A lieutenant is killed and another wounded. A little farther along a rifle grenade mortally wounds another officer.

"We take possession of our sector and work hard to render it impregnable to a surprise attack. The Boches are only fifty yards away. At 3:30 in the morning they attack.

"From our front line, we can see their infantry. They are so close to their own barrage that at one moment they are obliged to fall back to keep from being massacred by their own shells.

"We have orders to die on the spot before abandoning our line. A hand-to-hand combat is quickly engaged.

"The Germans succeed in getting into our trenches. We do not have enough grenades to beat off their attacks.

"But the waves which we drive back are quickly replaced with fresh troops and the hand-to-hand fighting continues. A lieutenant in charge of a section after driving one German assault is surrounded by a second. The lieutenant shoots three German flame shooters. He finds that the defensive grenades they are using do not have a range sufficiently long and orders his men to seize offensive grenades.

"The latter are still in their heavy packing cases. To open them his men use pickaxes at the risk of exploding the whole case. But they get them cut and drive the German flame throwers back. At this point the enemy has now been thrown back across the Chemin des Dames.

"We find another soldier sitting on a trench with a pipe in his mouth calmly shooting down German grenade throwers before a single one can get within reach of him.

"Another soldier after valiantly beating off the Germans from in front of his shell hole only to find that still others are threatening to cut him off from the rear, comes back and indignantly asks his lieutenant at what range he must fix his rifle in order to get those pigs there."

"At ten in the morning we have the Boches back on the other side of the Chemin des Dames. In the evening we await eagerly the official communiqué. A line announces that an attack has been repulsed on the Chemin des Dames. The German communiqué next day makes ever briefer reference."
